

Kabembo Helene Mukeya is a pharmacist who is passionate about improving population health especially for women and children around the world. She believes in research that can provide policy/decision makers with information that is necessary to draft and implement sound health policies. She has worked in DR Congo, Zimbabwe and Namibia as part of teams of health care professionals dedicated to the provision of quality health care for all. She has also volunteered with organizations dedicated to end gender -based -violence as well as improve maternal and child health. She is an MS'15 graduate in Global Health and Management from the Heller School of Social Policy and Management and an MBA'13 from the Management College of Southern Africa (Mancosa). Ms. Mukeya is fluent in French, English, and Swahili.